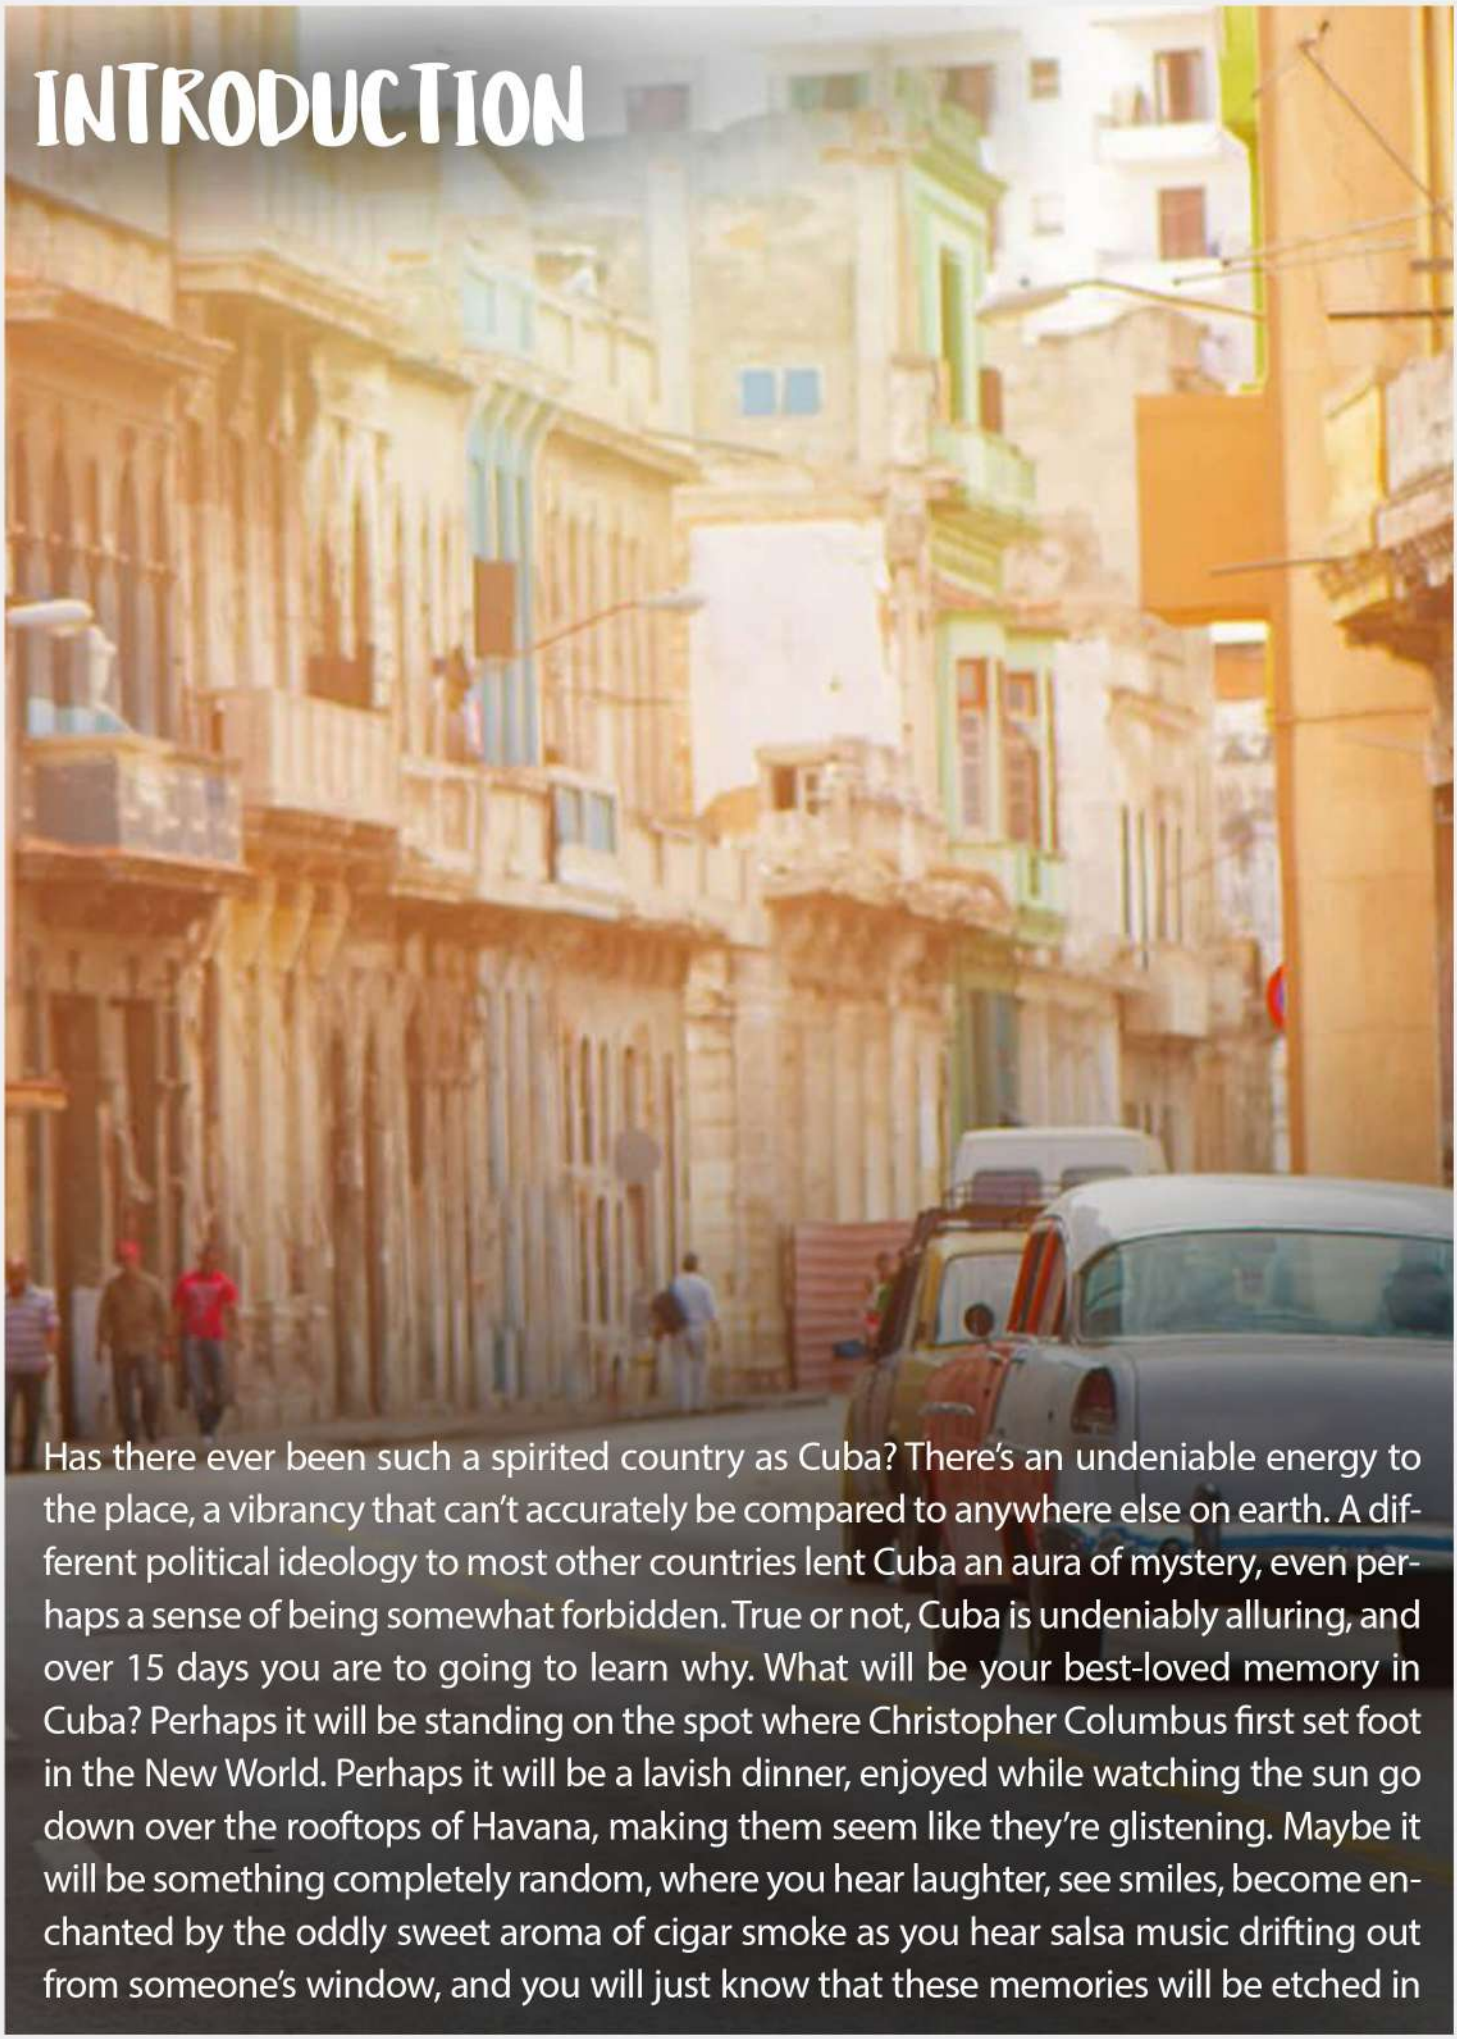
INTRODUCTION



Has there ever been such a spirited country as Cuba? There's an undeniable energy to the place, a vibrancy that can't accurately be compared to anywhere else on earth. A different political ideology to most other countries lent Cuba an aura of mystery, even perhaps a sense of being somewhat forbidden. True or not, Cuba is undeniably alluring, and over 15 days you are to going to learn why. What will be your best-loved memory in Cuba? Perhaps it will be standing on the spot where Christopher Columbus first set foot in the New World. Perhaps it will be a lavish dinner, enjoyed while watching the sun go down over the rooftops of Havana, making them seem like they're glistening. Maybe it will be something completely random, where you hear laughter, see smiles, become enchanted by the oddly sweet aroma of cigar smoke as you hear salsa music drifting out from someone's window, and you will just know that these memories will be etched in

ITINERARY OVERVIEW

The exquisite cultural history of contemporary Cuba will be on proud display over 15 unforgettable days. Your senses will be stimulated as you gain a unique overview as to what makes Cuba so magical. The island nation is in a fascinating state of transition, simultaneously embracing its past while looking towards the future. You can look forward to ambling along the cobblestoned streets of gorgeous Trinidad and discovering the delights of Havana's Old Town. Perhaps you'll be most enchanted by the peaceful isolation of Baracoa. Get ready, because 15 days of pure joy are about to begin. Bienvenida! Cuba welcomes you with open arms.

- Days Four and Five: Trinidad
- Days Six and Seven: Camagüey
- Days Eight and Nine: Santiago de Cuba
- Days Ten, Eleven and Twelve: Baracoa
- Days Thirteen and Fourteen: Havana
- Day Fifteen: Departure Day

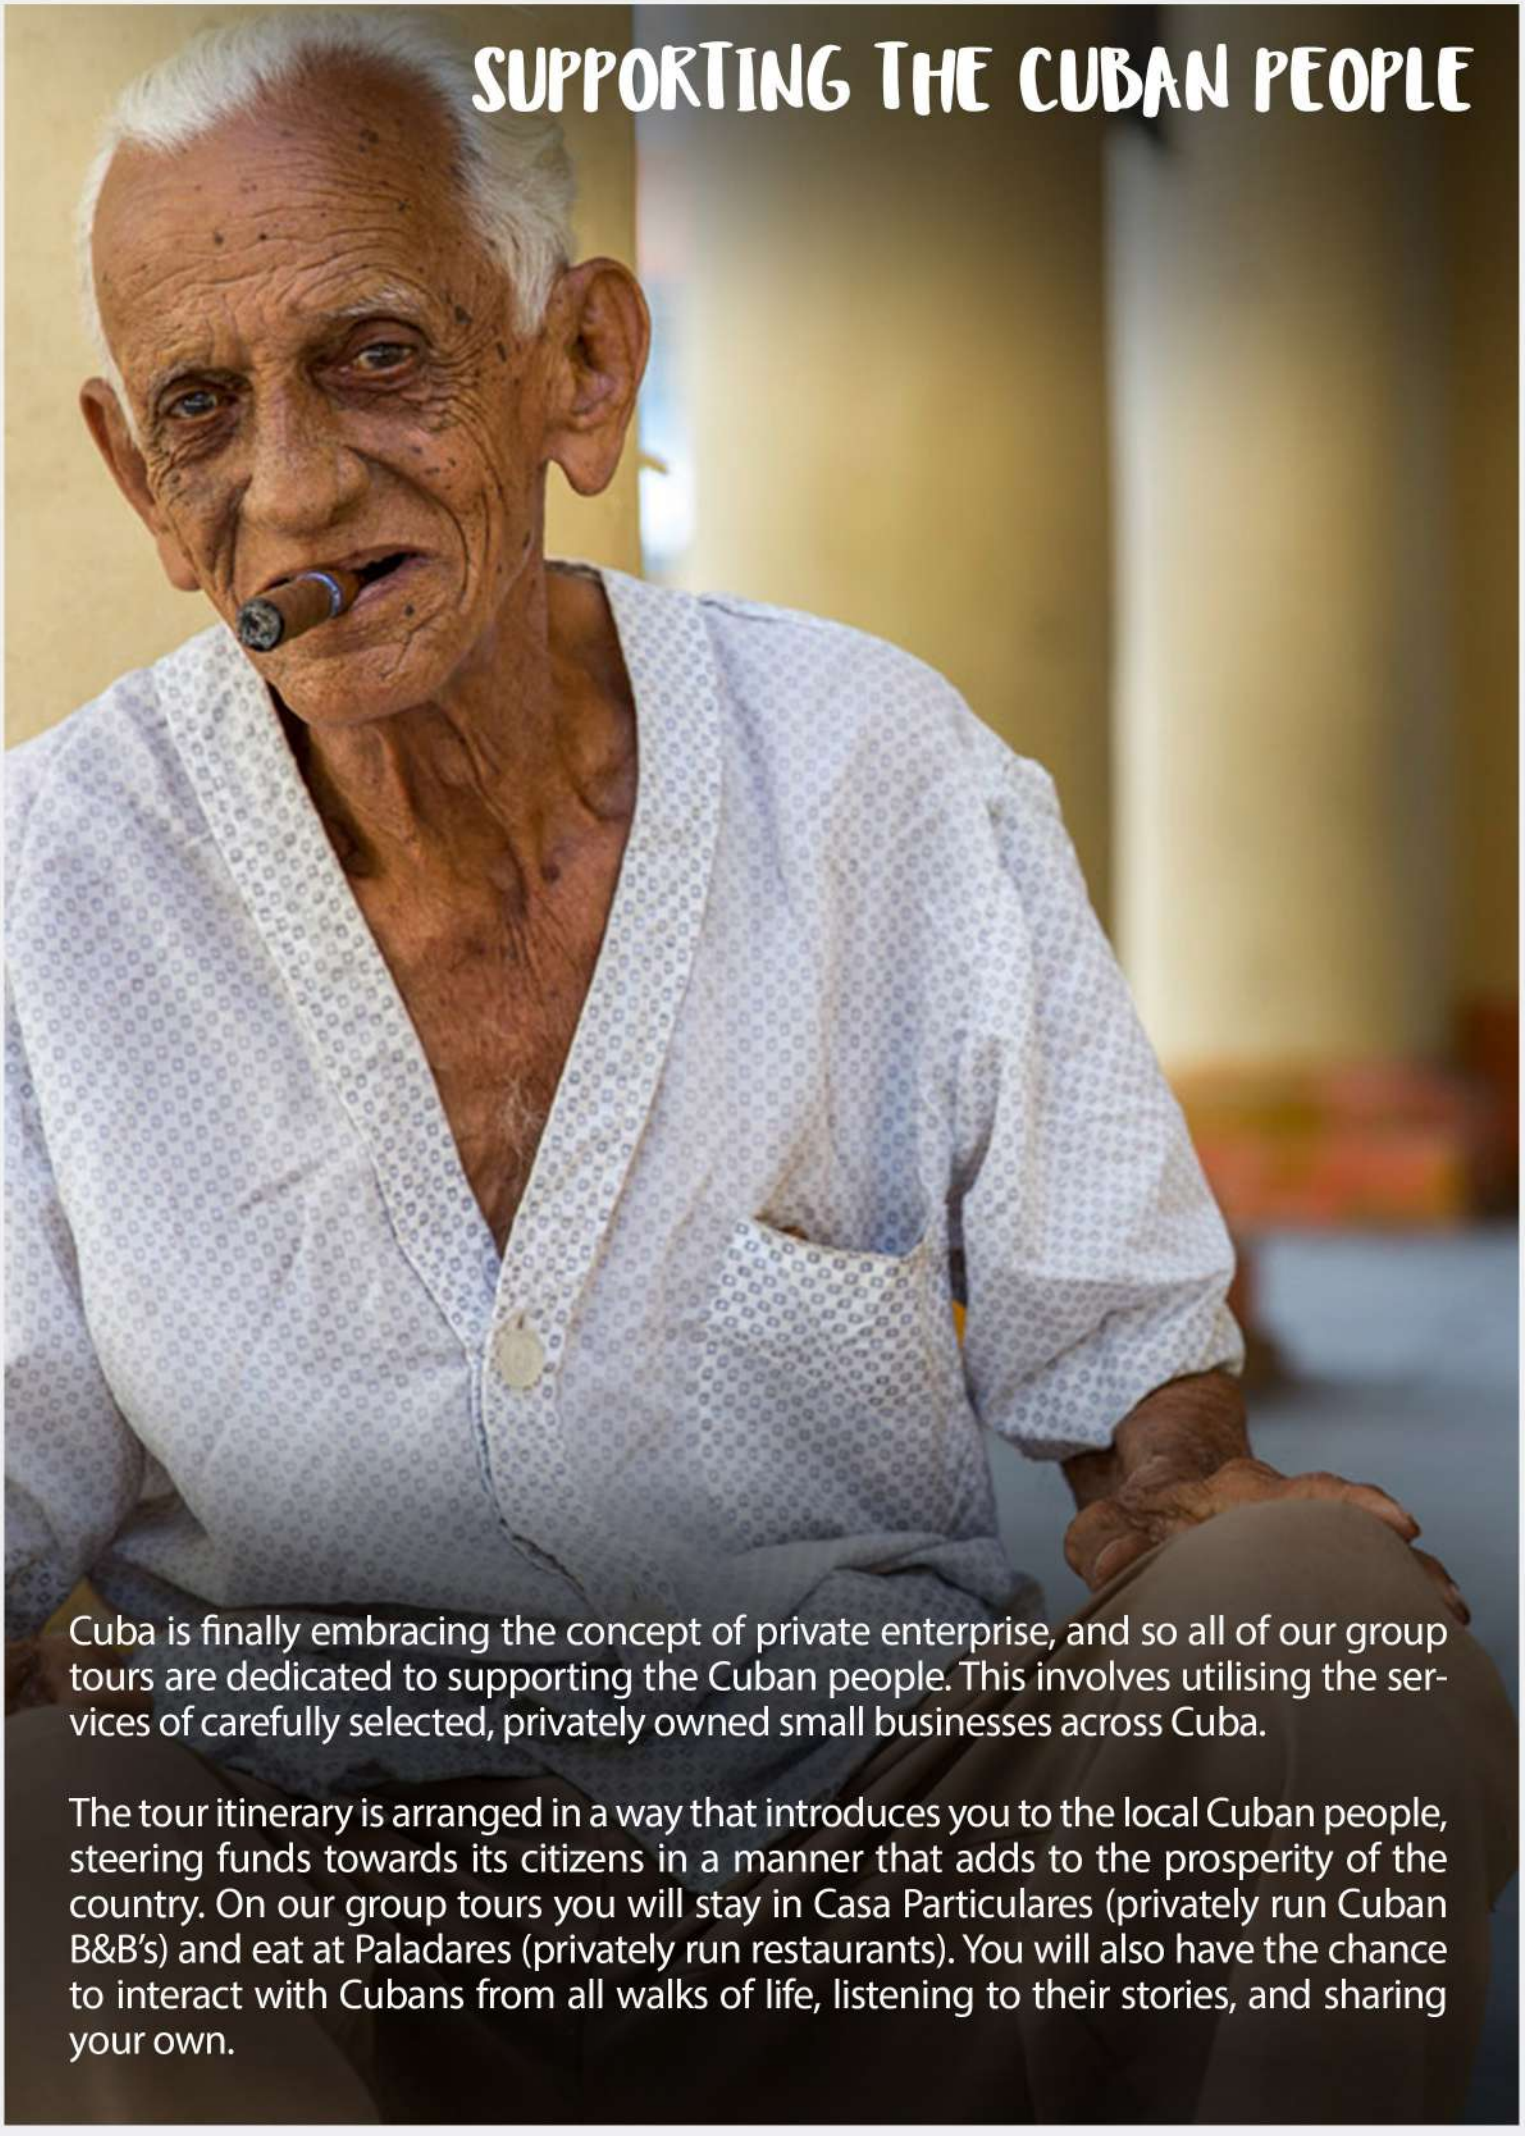
SUPPORTING THE CUBAN PEOPLE



Cuba is finally embracing the concept of private enterprise, and so all of our group tours are dedicated to supporting the Cuban people. This involves utilising the services of carefully selected, privately owned small businesses across Cuba.

The tour itinerary is arranged in a way that introduces you to the local Cuban people, steering funds towards its citizens in a manner that adds to the prosperity of the country. On our group tours you will stay in Casa Particulares (privately run Cuban B&B's) and eat at Paladares (privately run restaurants). You will also have the chance to interact with Cubans from all walks of life, listening to their stories, and sharing your own.

U.S. TRAVEL TO CUBA

This document represents a full-time itinerary of activities compliant with the General License pursuant to Federal Register Vol. 80, No. 11 issued November 9, 2017 on behalf of the Department of the Treasury of Foreign Assets Control 31 CFR Part 515 Cuban Assets Control Regulations 515.574 Support for the Cuban People. No financial transactions have taken place with entities or subentities associated with the "Cuba Restricted List". In addition to this itinerary, and in accordance with CFR Part 501 Subpart C 501.601 and 501.602, the booking receipt, airline receipt, and any supplemental insurance purchased will also be retained and available for examination for at least five years after the completion of travel.

Please note that U.S. travelers are required to engage in a full-time schedule of activities that result in meaningful interaction with individuals in Cuba and must not include free time or recreation in excess of that consistent with a full-time schedule (8 hours per day including meals and transportation). When there is scheduled free time in the itinerary, U.S. travelers will have activities available to them that are approved to "Support the Cuban People" including eating at privately-owned Cuban restaurants (paladares), shopping at privately-owned stores run by self-employed Cubans (cuentapropista), visiting with your Casa Particular host or Cuban guide to learn about Cuban culture, or visiting with Cuban entrepreneurs launching their privately-owned businesses.

*Please note that the map is for illustration purposes only and does not indicate the path you will follow across Cuba or the type of transportation included.

IS THIS TOUR FOR ME?

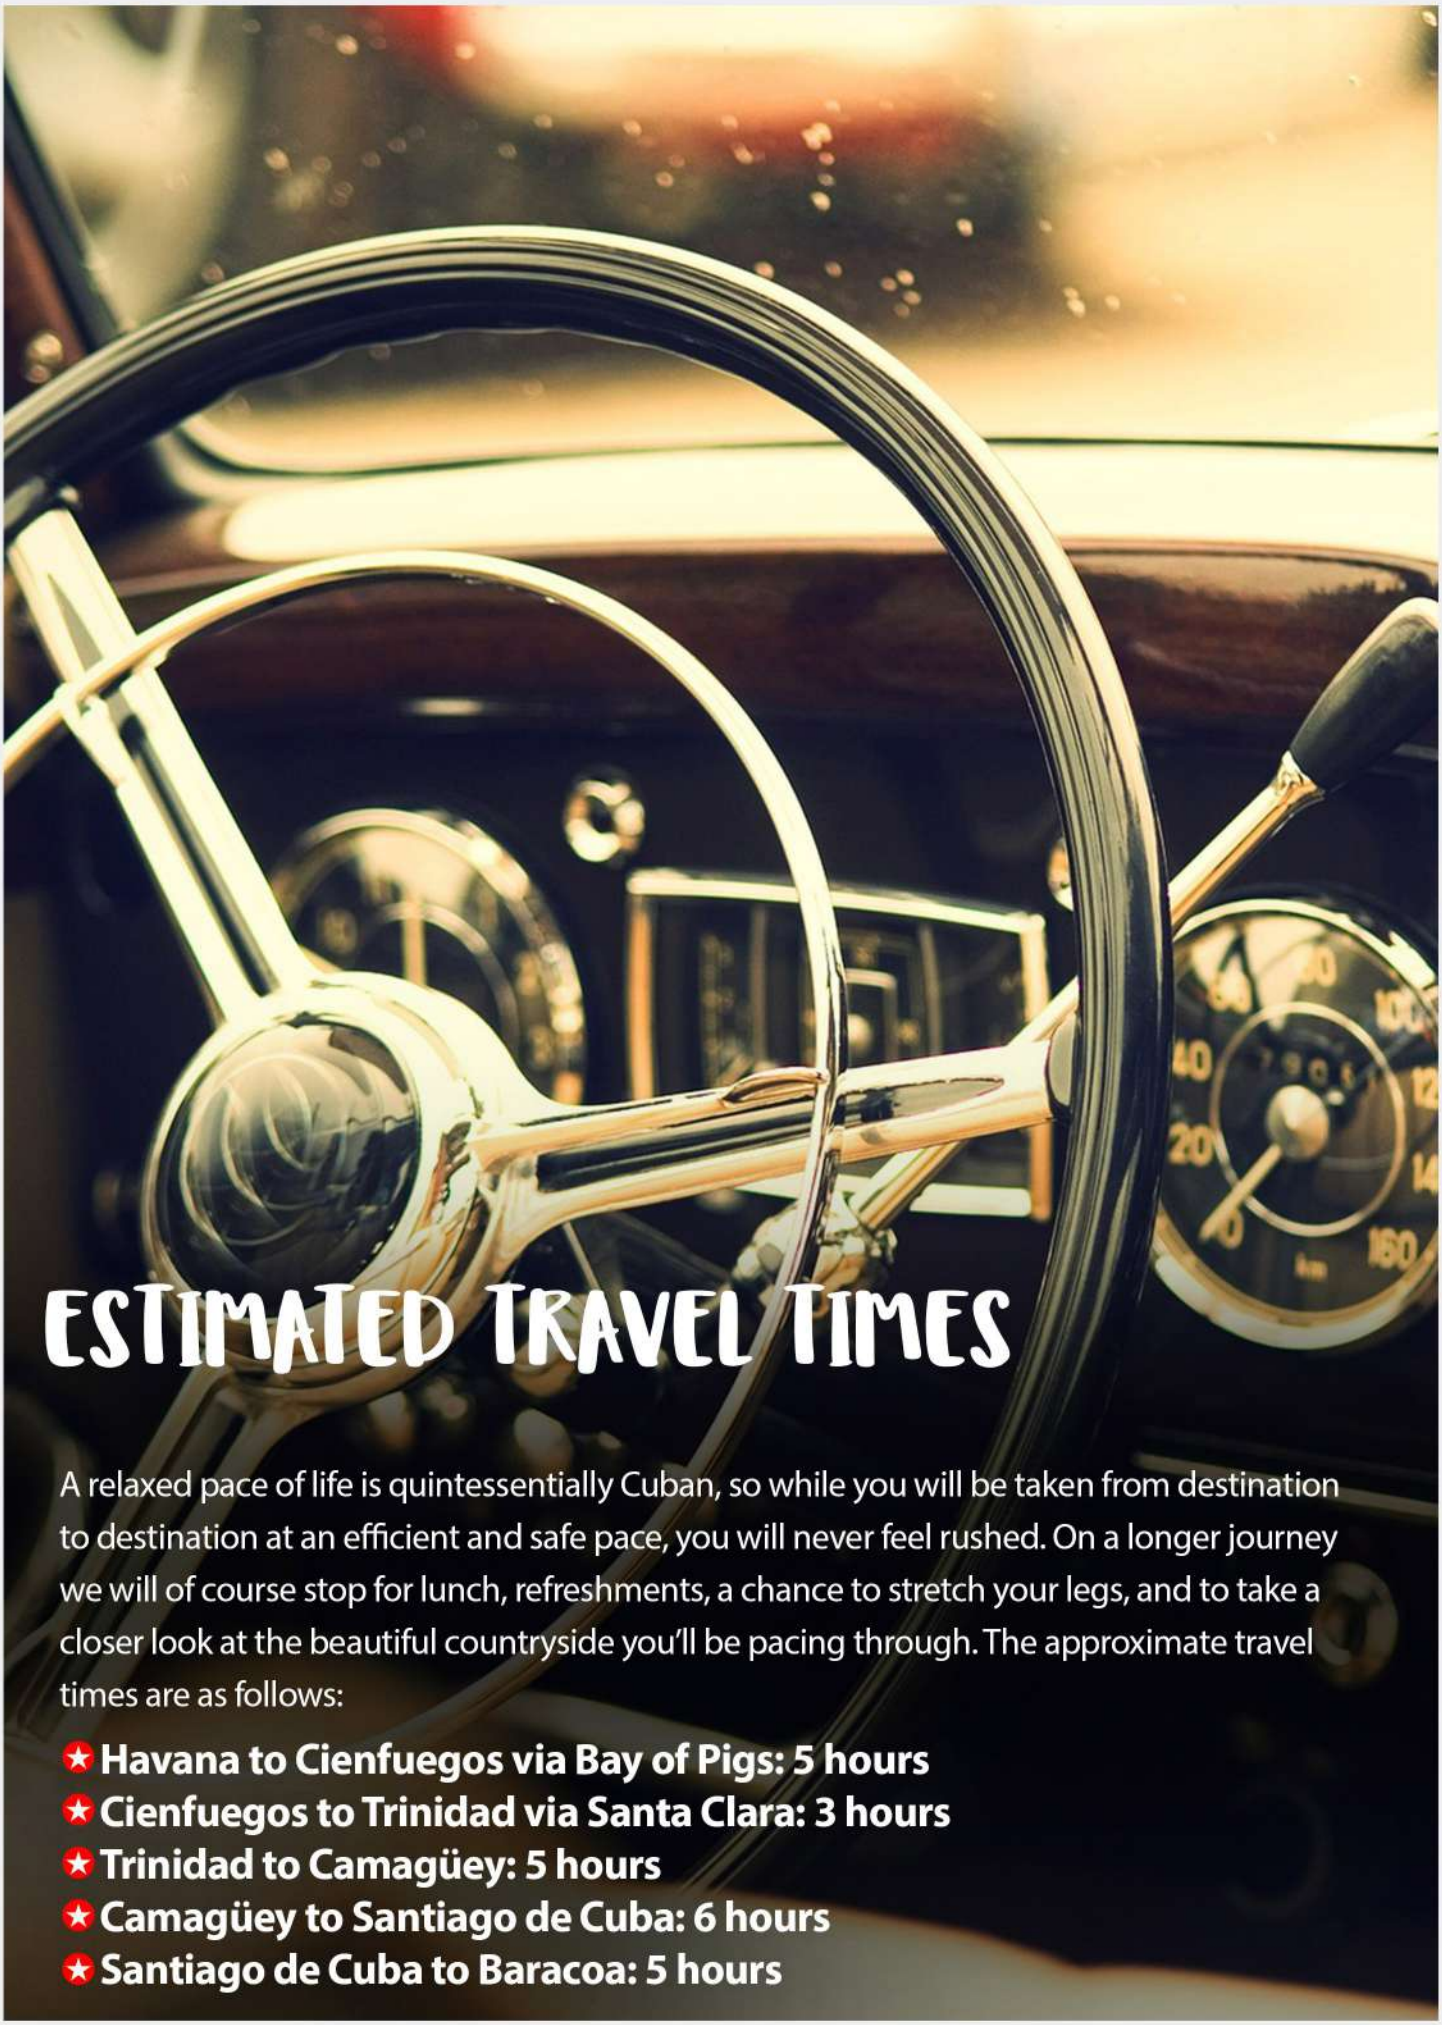
OFFERING AN ABUNDANCE OF FREEDOM AND THE FLEXIBILITY TO TRAVEL AT YOUR OWN PACE, THIS INTIMATE TOUR COMES WITH A LOCAL ENGLISH-SPEAKING LOCAL GUIDE WHO WILL BE WITH YOU AT EACH STAGE OF YOUR JOURNEY. SOME OTHER THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW

Casa Particulares are family-run businesses which are set-up to provide B&B style accommodation to foreigners – a unique cultural experience. Casa Particulares are generally of a higher standard than normal Cuban dwellings but can be more basic than foreigners are used to. It is important to remember that each room at a Casa is unique in its size and set-up. Whether you stay in a hotel or Casa, sometimes power cuts and breaks in hot water are unavoidable in any developing country, although it's not a regular occurrence in Cuba.

Part of the experience of traveling through Cuba is experiencing Cuban resourcefulness. Spare parts for vehicles and appliances are often difficult and cost-prohibitive to come by, so don't be surprised if your notice that Cuban ingenuity has been used to keep various things working.

Access to the internet in Cuba is rapidly expanding but can still be variable, slow and unreliable. It is also relatively expensive to get online at a hotel or one of the various Wifi zones that have been set-up across the country. Traveling through Cuba offers a great opportunity to take a break from your electronic devices and have a truly relaxing experience.

Cuba is a unique travel destination and this is one of the many things that make it so popular. It's part of the 'laid back Caribbean' and things don't always go to plan or schedule. A great sense of humour and patience are qualities that will go a long way in making your stay in Cuba an enjoyable one. Just go with the flow!



ESTIMATED TRAVEL TIMES

A relaxed pace of life is quintessentially Cuban, so while you will be taken from destination to destination at an efficient and safe pace, you will never feel rushed. On a longer journey we will of course stop for lunch, refreshments, a chance to stretch your legs, and to take a closer look at the beautiful countryside you'll be pacing through. The approximate travel times are as follows:

- Havana to Cienfuegos via Bay of Pigs: 5 hours
- Cienfuegos to Trinidad via Santa Clara: 3 hours
- Trinidad to Camagüey: 5 hours
- Camagüey to Santiago de Cuba: 6 hours
- Santiago de Cuba to Baracoa: 5 hours

FITNESS REQUIREMENTS

In order to fully enjoy your 15 day Cuba group tour, you will need an average level of fitness and mobility. Group travel can potentially be more demanding than a more conventional holiday. You should be able to walk without assistance from another person, climb flights of stairs in buildings without elevators, safely step on or off the tour bus (and other forms of transport), and carry your own luggage.

YOUR DAY BY DAY ITINERARY

DAY 1: HAVANA

It doesn't matter what time your flight touches down on day one, as there are no activities planned. You'll probably want to familiarise yourself with your joining accommodation and get to know the surrounding area. ATMs aren't always so easy to find in Cuba, so you might want to use the machine at Havana's Jose Marti International Airport (HAV). There's one outside the terminal (along with a currency exchange office), and there's a second machine upstairs in the departures area.Your airport transfer on arrival is included as part of your tour with us, so we will have a representative at the airport, waiting to greet you and transport you to your joining accommodation.You can expect a travel time of around 20 to 30 minutes, and you might want to tip the driver an additional two or three CUC for good service. It can be helpful to have the address of your joining hotel or casa particular to give to the driver.

Havana fizzes with life, her buoyant, joyous energy is infectious, and it's a stunning start to your 10 day Cuba group tour. After a rather turbulent several centuries, Havana has settled into a rhythm that just seems to work. After the collapse of the USSR, a lot of the international aid that Cuba relied upon simply disappeared, and this was the catalyst for the country to recognise its own attributes and open itself open to tourism in a way that hadn't been seen for decades. Upon arrival, you will want to get out and about to explore the city, and this bustling city never feels overwhelming.

While a walk around Havana's Old Town will have your eyes bulging with excitement (it's said that daily life in the Cuban capital resembles street theatre), just to the west you will findthe gritty working class district of Centro Habana (a picture of ruined, yet haunting beauty), and the comparably well-heeled districts of Vedado and Miramar. All these pieces come together to form modern Havana in all her glory and contradictions. There's a true cultural wealth in the city, with realms of museums and cultural spaces. Havana is a city that literally dances, and you can enjoy virtuoso ballet, Afro Cuban dance, flamenco, jazz and timba. The Cuban dining scene was rather fairly reviled for many decades, but this is changing at a rate that is nothing less than astounding.

The government eased the once tight restrictions when it came to operating a private business, and new restaurants are expanding Havana's culinary borders with innovation and aplomb. Depending on your time of arrival, you can even join your guide and fellow tour group members for dinner in a gorgeous setting - an authentic Cuban Paladar (privately operated restaurant) close to your hotel or casa particular.

DAY 2: CIENFUEGOS VIA BAY OF PIGS

Your guide will meet you first thing in the morning, and then it's time to set off on your Cuban odyssey. Travelling in comfortable private transportation, you will arrive at your first destination in two to three hours. The Bay of Pigs/Playa Girón has a certain infamy due to its association with the USA's first military failure in Latin America. The military machinations that took place on this very spot are but a distant memory, far removed from the stunning natural beauty on display, with cave systems, coral formations and an abundance of sea life making it a must for snorkelers, divers and ocean lovers alike. You will enjoy a sumptuous lunch at a local Paladar, before setting off on the second stage of today's journey. It only takes approximately 1.5 hours before you arrive in Cienfuegos.

This pearl of a city (it has in fact been dubbed the Pearl of the Caribbean) demonstrates many of the cultural influences that have shaped contemporary Cuba. Many of the city's early settlers were French, generally coming from other French territories in the New World.
Of course your guide will take you on a detailed tour of the city with its grand, crumbling architecture, culminating in a relaxing cocktail.

The grandness of Cienfuegos is fascinatingly contrasted by one of the city's more unexpected pleasures - the Palacio de Valle, which seems to have taken Arabian Nights as its inspiration. This upscale restaurant dates back to 1917, and it's a tremendous (and indeed, amusing) sight to behold.

Something to look forward to tonight - it's your first time staying at a Casa Particular outside of Havana. You might find this to be a truly memorable part of your Cuban experience. You are welcomed into a local Cuban's home and are made to feel like one of the family. It varies, but many of these authentic homestay experiences can accommodate between six and ten guests. Our carefully selected Casas are all conveniently located in a central location at each destination. The rooms are well cared for, and there's always a group area and/or veranda to relax in and meet other travellers. You can also take full advantage of the proprietor's insider knowledge and can help to arrange any activities or excursions in the area. It's a truly authentic experience, providing an unbeatable level of service and attention in a supremely comfortable setting. After you have settled in, you can your guide and fellow tour group members for an evening cocktail.

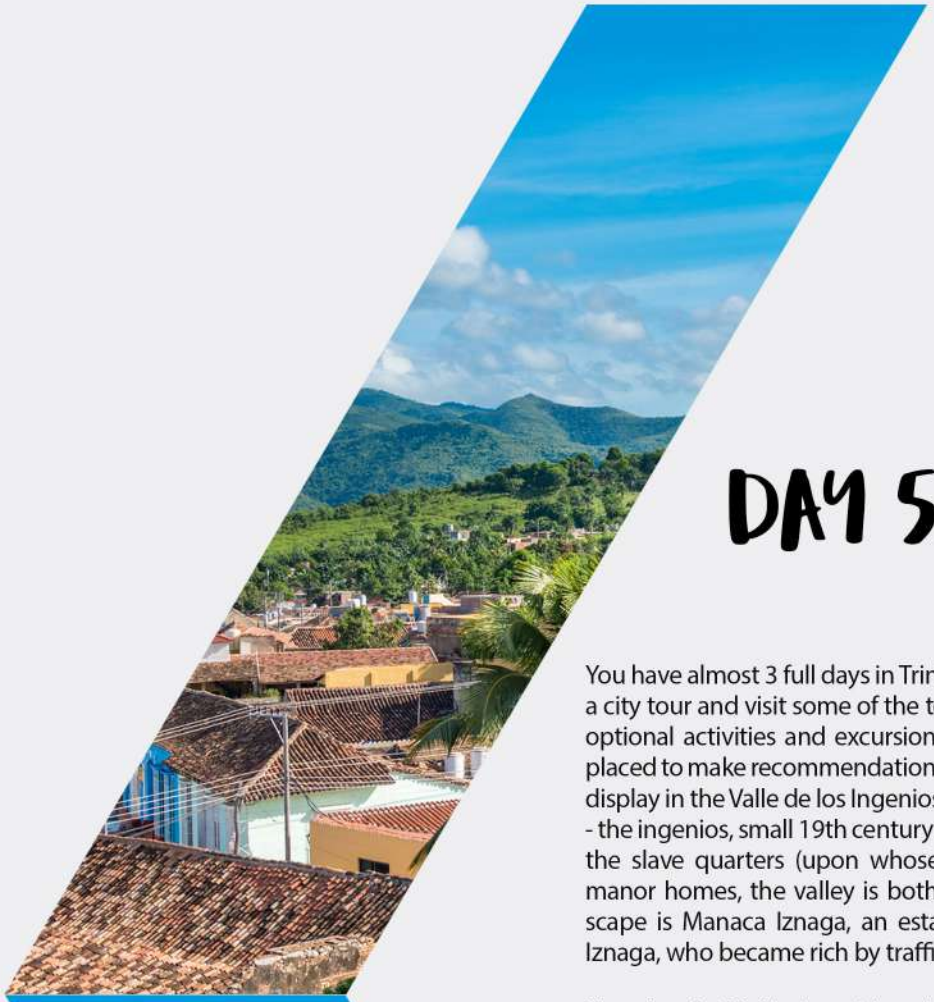
DAY 3: TRINIDAD VIA SANTA CLARA

You'll start the day with a hearty Cuban breakfast before setting off to a place that pays homage to Cuba's best-known adopted son - the Che Guevara Memorial and Museum. This is where the remains of this hero of the Cuban Revolution were interned after decades in a lonely, unmarked grave in Bolivia where he died. Here you will learn about how Guevara played a pivotal role in the demise of the dictator Batista and the rise of Fidel Castro, a turning point in the Cuban revolution. After time to explore and reflect, it's time to hit the road again, voyaging to the favourite destination of many a traveler to Cuba. The town of Trinidad was founded in 1514 by Diego Velázquez and is considered a jewel in Cuban colonial architecture. Many people are struck by how the town feels like a living museum, seemingly stuck in the era of Cuba's first War of Independence (one of the many struggles that shaped the nation). The relatively small size of the town is deceptive, since Trinidad has a vibrancy that will take your breath away. You will have almost two full days to explore the town and its lush surroundings. After your guided orientation walk around the town, your guide will make a number of suggestions as to the best optional activities to do at this time of year.

DAY 4: TRINIDAD

You might well wake up on your first morning in Trinidad to the sound of horses clip-clopping along the narrow cobbled streets, emphasising the feeling that you have stepped back in time. The horses of Trinidad are often used for treks in the countryside around the town. It can take a few moments to remind yourself that you are in fact still in the 21st century. Trinidad is a near perfect example of preserved colonial settlement, and the tourists milling around are about the only reminder that time has in fact moved on. The town flourished as the heart of Cuba's sugar production, which remains one of the country's key industries, albeit under a different model that was utilised in Trinidad. The adjacent Valle de los Ingenios (Valley of the Sugar Mills) was a source of great wealth, with the riches amassed during the early 19th century on display in the town's illustrious colonial-style mansions bedecked with Italian frescoes, Wedgwood china and French chandeliers. Just like Havana's Old Town, Trinidad was declared a World Heritage site in the 1980s, and in addition to the Valle de los Ingenios, there is much to see just beyond the town's boundaries. Some twelve kilometers to the south lies platinum-blond Playa Ancón, the south coast's best beach, while 18km to the you'll see the rugged 90 km-long north the Sierra del Escambray (Escambray Mountains) loom dramatically over the countryside. If you opt head to the hills to explore, there's a convenient hike of 2.5 km to the Salto del Caburní, a 62m waterfall cascading into cool swimming holes. This is round trip of around two and a half hours, although if the mountains don't appeal, you might just want to spend time by the beach.

Playa Ancon is a stunning ribbon of white beach on the shoreline of the luminous Sancti Spíritus region, considered (with good reason) to be the best beach on Cuba's southern coast. The beach is less than 15 minutes from Trinidad by car, or if you so desire, around 40 minutes on a bike. You should take the time to visit the old fishing port of Casilda, 6km to the south of Trinidad. On August 17 the Fiesta de Santa Elena engulfs the village of Casilda, with feasting, competitions, horse races and loads of rum (unsurprisingly). The road from Ancón to Casilda actually crosses a tidal flat, meaning a wide variety of birdlife is visible in the early morning.



DAY 5: TRINIDAD

You have almost 3 full days in Trinidad, so there will be ample opportunities to do a city tour and visit some of the town's museums. to take advantage of the many optional activities and excursions available to you and your guide will be best placed to make recommendations and bookings. The ghosts of the past are on full display in the Valle de los Ingenios. There are dozens of the namesake of the valley - the ingenios, small 19th century sugar mills in various states of decay. Along with the slave quarters (upon whose backs that sugar fortune was amassed) and manor homes, the valley is both beautiful and affecting. Dominating the landscape is Manaca Iznaga, an estate purchased in 1795 by the villainous Pedro Iznaga, who became rich by trafficking in slaves.

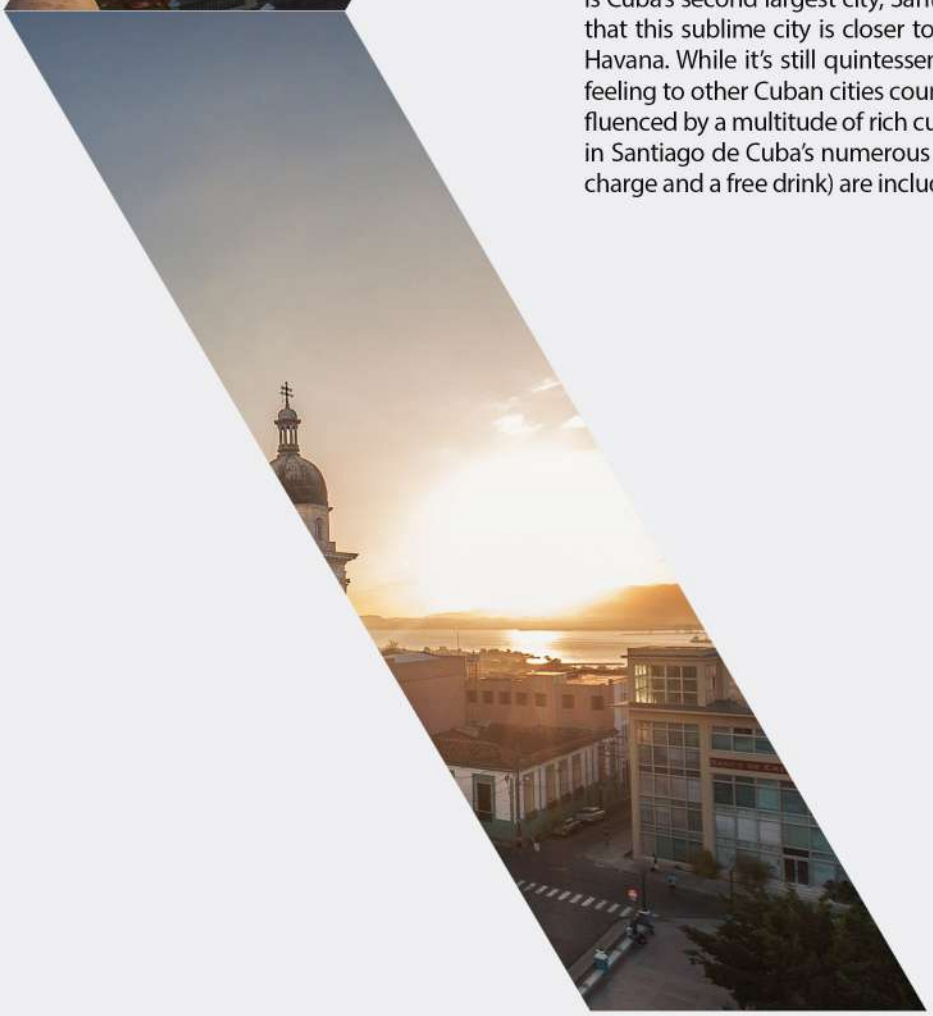
Your time in Trinidad would not be complete without at least one evening sitting on the steps outside the Casa de la Musica. Every night the area beside the Cathedral in Plaza Mayor (Trinidad's main square) come alive with a live 'Salsa' band. Entrance is free, the music and atmosphere is great, the mojitos are cheap, and what's more… you get one of the most beautiful starry skies thrown in for nothing! Don't forget our gift to you on this portion of your 15 day Cuba group tour: Your unforgettable visit to the Che Guevara Memorial and Museum, as well as an informal salsa lesson during one of your sumptuous Trinidad evenings. These lessons are suitable for all skill levels and are a whole lot of fun!

DAY 6: CAMAGÜEY

After breakfast on day 6, it's time to hit the road and venture east to Camagüey. Cuba's third largest city has had a rather tumultuous history. Founded in 1514, the original settlement was known as Santa María del Puerto del Príncipe and was located to the north, right on the coast. After a series of devastating pirate attacks, the settlement was located inland and took the name of the native Taino village it took over (the Taino were the indigenous inhabitants of Cuba), and so Santa María del Puerto del Príncipe became Camagüey. Still wary of pirates who might choose to venture inland, the layout of the fledgling city was (according to some) designed with security in mind. Known as La Ciudad Confusa, the streets of the city were designed to resemble an actual maze, meaning any invading forces could be confused, split up, and more easily overwhelmed by the local defense forces. That's one story anyway. The other (arguably less interesting) story is that the winding streets of the town were accidental, and the maze-like structure of the central city resulted from the city's rapid growth, with new streets added without much planning.

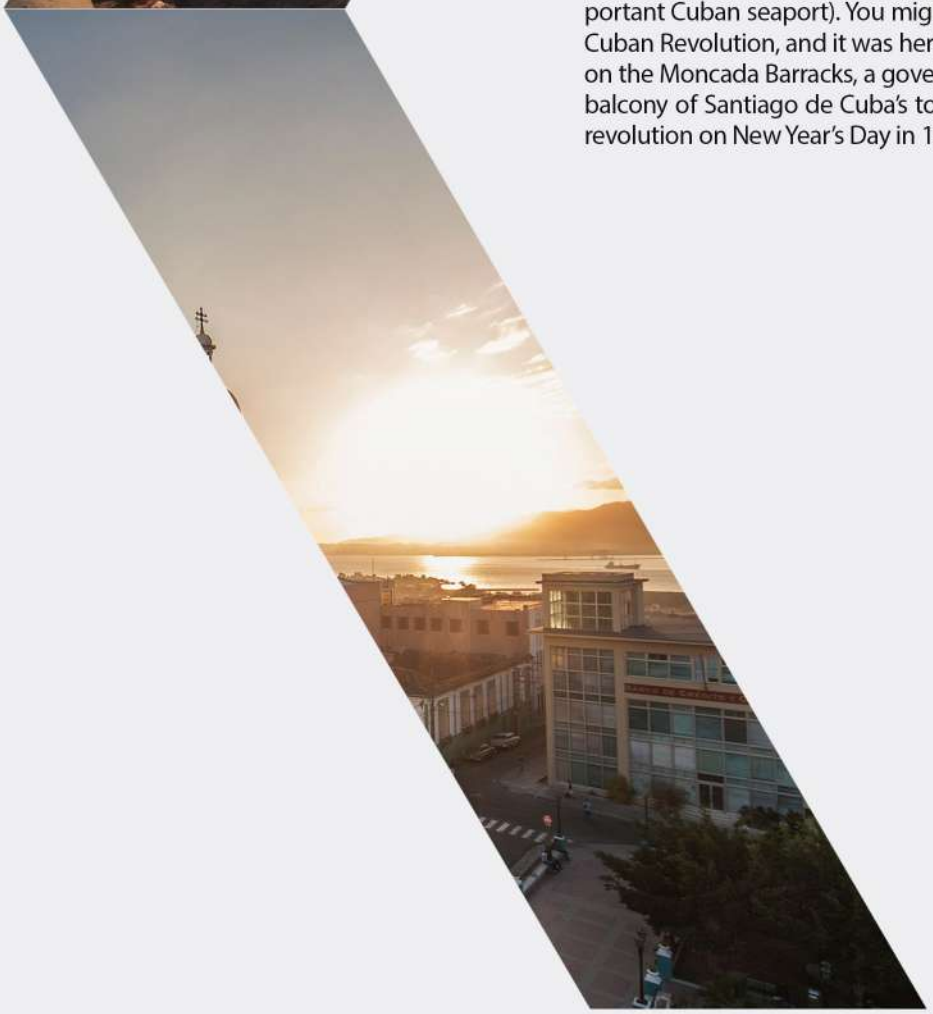
DAY 7: CAMAGÜEY

Your second day in Camagüey allows you to explore the unique delights of the city. With its large number of squares and parks, colonial architecture and enriched spiritual persona, Camaguey is a mecca for Cuban arts and culture. Plan a visit to a famous historical landmark or explore an impressive collection of art galleries and handicraft exhibits. It's in Camagüey that you'll get to experience that famous Cuban rhythm firsthand with a visit to a local dance school. The city also gives you the chance to experience Cuba's spiritual side (although the nation's spiritual heritage is visible everywhere), since Camagüey has some 15 churches within a fairly close proximity to each other. During the Camagüey portion of your 15 day Cuba group tour we will include a guided tour on the back of a bicycle taxi (ensuring that you don't get lost in the maze-like streets), as well as a visit to a local dance school.



DAY 8: SANTIAGO DE CUBA

Day eight of your tour sees you continuing to the east, and your destination today is Cuba's second largest city, Santiago de Cuba. Much has been made of the fact that this sublime city is closer to Haiti and the Dominican Republic than it is to Havana. While it's still quintessentially Cuban, Santiago de Cuba has a different feeling to other Cuban cities courtesy of its unique background - one which is influenced by a multitude of rich cultures. The culture of the city is on proud display in Santiago de Cuba's numerous music venues, and a night out (including cover charge and a free drink) are included during your time in this wonderful city.



DAY 9: SANTIAGO DE CUBA

You might want to spend day nine further exploring key sites you saw on your orientation walk of Santiago de Cuba. Don't forget to stay hydrated if you want to climb one of the city's hills for a better view of the luminous bay (the city is an important Cuban seaport). You might also want to get to know the city's role in the Cuban Revolution, and it was here that the revolution began, with a rebel attacks on the Moncada Barracks, a government military installation. It was also from the balcony of Santiago de Cuba's town hall that Fidel Castro claimed victory in the revolution on New Year's Day in 1951.

DAY 10: BARACOA

On day ten, your 15 day Cuba group tour heads to the eastern tip of Cuba. Welcome to Baracoa. This isolated spot carries a wealth of important history. This is where Christopher Columbus landed on his first voyage to the New World, although the subsequent colonisation was bad news for the Taino, Cuba's original inhabitants. It's in Baracoa where many of their traditions survive. Since this was a logical and convenient arrival point for boats venturing from Spain, Baracoa was named as Cuba's capital city in the early 1500s. Of course, this title was soon taken by Havana when Baracoa's isolation became too much of a hindrance (for centuries it was only accessible by sea, something that only came to an end in the 1960s). A wooden cross (the Cruz de la Parra) is proudly displayed in the city's cathedral, and this was erected by Columbus upon his arrival in what would become Cuba, back in 1492. What Baracoa lacks in size, it makes up for in its rich history and relaxed atmosphere.

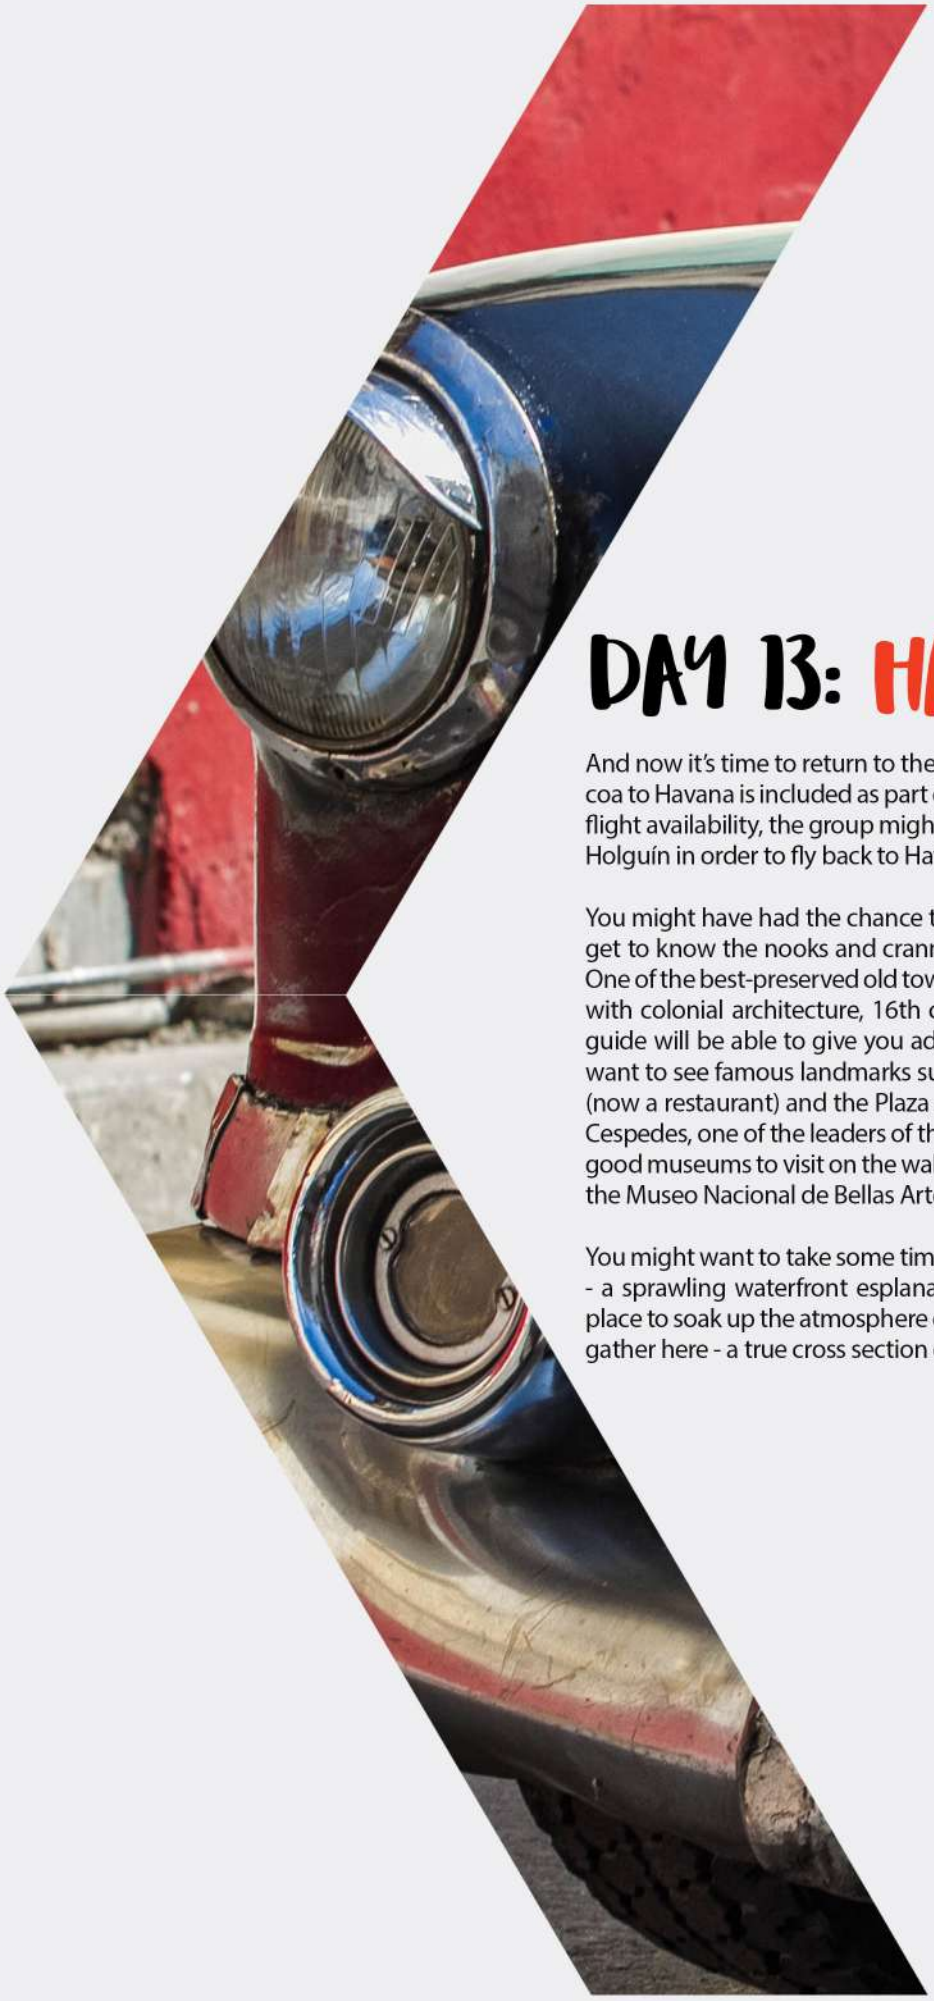
DAY 11: BARACOA

Your second day in Baracoa allows you to explore the city in depth. Like many Cuban cities, Baracoa has many remnants of fortification, speaking of a more troubled time in the nation's history. Be sure to see the Fuerte Matachín (which was built in 1802). There's also the Fuerte La Punta (which was built in 1803), which is now largely comprised of a restaurant (with a beautiful small beach next to the fort). You might also want to have a look at the Hotel Castillo, which was once a fort (known as El Castillo), and the views from here are unbeatable.

You might also want to take the opportunity to explore the lavish local landscapes in the wilderness surrounding Baracoa. From the town there are many outdoor excursions to go on, each making use of its beautiful surroundings. Explore the bountiful rivers in the area or go boating between the tall cliffs at the mouth of Yumuri River. You can also explore the lush jungles in the foothills of El Yunque, an imposing flat-topped mountain that dominates the local landscape.

DAY 13: BARACOA

While in Baracoa, you should also allow your stomach to savour the local delights, and this region of Cuba is well-known for its cuisine. There's a definite preference for chocolate amongst the many outlets in the town, since this part of Cuba is idea for coca production, and a lot of the nation's cocoa crops are in fact grown around Baracoa. Many of the cocoa-based products are also produced in Baracoa. There are also an abundance of banana and coconut crops in the countryside around the town - the climate is perfect for it. While in Baracoa we will include ascrumptious BBQ lunch by the river, where you and your fellow tour group members can relax (and indulge).



DAY 13: HAVANA

And now it's time to return to the captivating capital. An internal flight from Baracoa to Havana is included as part of this tour. Please note that on occasions, due to flight availability, the group might need to be transported to Santiago de Cuba or Holguín in order to fly back to Havana.

You might have had the chance to see it on your first day, but now is a chance to get to know the nooks and crannies of Havana's Old Town on your walking tour. One of the best-preserved old towns in the former New World, the streets are lined with colonial architecture, 16th century fortresses and countless churches. Your guide will be able to give you advice on what to see and do, but we think you'll want to see famous landmarks such as Palacio de los Marqueses de Aguas Claras (now a restaurant) and the Plaza de Armas, complete with a statue of Manuel de Cespedes, one of the leaders of the independence movement. There are plenty of good museums to visit on the walking tour, including Museo de la Revolución and the Museo Nacional de Bellas Artes.

You might want to take some time to take a walk along the city's famous Malecón - a sprawling waterfront esplanade that dates back to 1901. This is the perfect place to soak up the atmosphere of the city and watch the eclectic characters who gather here - a true cross section of the city's residents.

DAY 14: HAVANA

There's a special treat during your days in Havana. Your guide will take you on a tour of greater Havana in a classic car. This allows you to see the different sides of the city, giving you a greater understanding of all the parts that combine to make Havana. The estimates vary, but there are around 60,000 pre-1960 vehicles still proudly prowling Cuba's streets (down from around 150,000 vehicles before the US slapped a trade embargo on Cuba). This iconic mode of transport is the perfect way to see wider Havana and a very different side of the city. Here you will be chauffeured around some of the most famous areas of Havana including New Havana, Old Havana, the affuent neighborhood of Miramar and the famous cemetery of Colon.

And today, we'll take you to a special rooftop terrace in Havana's Old Town that makes a sublime mojito (or a non-alcoholic alternative). You'll be taught how to make a classic Cuban cocktail before enjoying a farewell dinner with your group and guide, with an unbeatable view over the rooftops of the city.

DAY 15: HAVANA

Your schedule for the final day will depend on the time of your departure flight, and it's important to arrive at the airport three hours before takeoff. If time permits, you'll be able to check off anything in Havana that you still might want to see. The earlier parts of the day should be devoted to seeing as much of Havana as you can (or just sit in a plaza with a Cuban coffee and watch the world go by).

You might wish to see how much time you have to play with on this last day before you need to get to the airport, and then ask your guide about the best activities that can comfortably fit into your schedule. And then it will be time to bid Cuba a fond farewell, until we see you on one of our future tours.
